SCENE 1 - INT. DIMLY LIT STUDIO APARTMENT - MORNING

Dust motes dance in a single beam of morning sunlight cutting through drawn blinds. DAVID (30s), tired, sits at a cluttered desk. ELENA (30s), calm, watches from the doorway. MARCUS (40s) checks his watch nervously, while CHLOE (20s) sets down two takeout coffee cups.

David hovers his thumb over the 'RECORD' button on an old tape recorder. He hesitates, takes a deep breath, and presses it down. The gears click into motion.

DAVID

(Softly, into the microphone)

Entry forty-seven. Final log. If you're listening to this... it means the signal finally went quiet.

ELENA

Are you sure you want to stop recording now?

SCENE 2 - INT. STUDIO APARTMENT - CONTINUOUS

Marcus steps forward, pacing near the window, looking through the drawn blinds at the empty street below.

MARCUS

We spent three years waiting for an answer.
Checking frequencies every hour on the hour.

CHLOE

(Hands David a coffee cup)

Maybe the silence isn't an ending. Maybe it's just telling us it's time to move on.

DAVID

(Bitter laugh, taking the cup)

Turns out the silence was an invitation to leave.

SCENE 3 - INT. STUDIO APARTMENT - LATER

David picks up his small leather duffel bag. Elena hands Marcus his coat, while Chloe opens the apartment door, letting in the morning light.

David turns a framed photograph face-up on the desk, smiles faintly, and clicks 'STOP' on the recorder. He pockets the tape cassette and swings the bag over his shoulder.

The four of them step out into the hallway together, closing the door behind them.

FADE OUT.
